PORT ARTHUR

Has Fallen--Stoessel Held Out Until First Day Of the Year.

Long Contest in the Siege a Story Of Almost Unceasing Slaughter.

VALOR ON BOTH SIDES.

Washington, Jan. 4.—With Port Arthur's fall the most dramatic of modern warfare has been written into history.

The capitulation marks the end of the most remarkable struggle for possession of a fortress in recent times, and the cessation of a slaughter which has cost many thousands of lives. The full effect of the surrender remains to be seen.

For 327 days the Gibraltar of the East has been beleaguered on land and sea by the combined forces of the mikado. From the guns of Admiral Togo's fleet and the batteries of General Nogi's army has poured an almost ceaseless hail of shell and shrapnel on the citadel of the ear. Night and day the little brown soldiers of the mikado hurled themselves against the battlements, gaining slowly but surely in their advance on the chain of seemingly impregnable defenses. Fighting over every inch of contested ground, scorning all proposals for a surrender, General Stoessel finally was compelled to yield to the inevitable.

World Gives Praise.

The world has already accorded its meed of praise to the besiegers and the besieged. The dogged determination of General Stoessel to resist to the last has made him the hero of the Russian army, while the ceaseless activity of Admiral Togo and General Nogi has gained them recognition as two of the most accomplished warriors of modern times. The feats of valor performed on both sides have been without parallel since the history of the art of warfare was reduced to a science.

Port Arthur became an invested city almost from the time of the firing of the first shot in the Russo-Japanese war, on the night of Feb. 8, 1904, when Admiral Togo made his dash and sent his torpedo boats into the harbor and attacked the Russian fleet while its officers were making merry on shore.

Two Russian battleships and two cruisers, the flower of the fleet, and several smaller vessels, were badly damaged in that attack, and when daylight came the Japanese fleet began hurling shells into the city. Then was the beginning of the eleven months of horror—the conversion of the fortress into what has been repeatedly described as a "living hell."

Assault Lasts Five Days.

For five days without ceasing the final assault was maintained. Day and night the Japanese artillery continued to fire, and assault followed assault in unending succession, and the place was surrounded with an increasing hail of fire.

At 6 in the evening of Dec. 31 an assault on the whole eastern side was renewed with amazing vehemence. A mine made a hole in the side of "H" Fort and the Japanese Infantry, piercing the covered way rushed in. Fighting lasted all night, the Japanese pushing against the whole ridge simultaneously. The Russians resisted at every point, but were slowly driven back.

The position was now desperate. Great explosions around the fort proclaimed that the Russians were exploding their magazines. Flames and smoke in the harbor, followed by explosion after explosion, revealed the destruction of the Russian battleships. They destroyed rather than surrendered them. They also apparently purposely blew up two of their own forts.

Big War Ships Destroyed.

The Sevastopol was blown up and other large Russian ships were destroyed as thoroughly as possible. The Retvizan, the Poltava and the Pallada caught fire and the other ships were blown up inside and near the entrance of the harbor.

At half an hour after midnight on January 2 the Russians evacuated the East Kinwanshan fort and the Japanese occupied N and M heights, to the south of the fort. At 12:30 noon, Monday, Tunkiewanshan and "M" forts were blown up by the Russians.

Then came word that General Stoessel had offered to surrender and fighting ceased.

Conditions Liberal.

General Stoessel, most stubborn in carrying out the will of his sovereign, has seen the advance of the besieging army gain in momentum and energy until to hold out longer would have been a crime against humanity. The conditions of the surrender are not yet known, but advice received at the Japanese legation say Gen. Nogi accepted the terms proposed by Gen. Stoessel.

SEVERAL CASES

Of Smallpox Have Developed Near Antioch.

Several new cases of smallpox have developed in North Christian from a violation of the law by a young man, who attended a party with the disease. At least five young men who were there now have smallpox, and several of them have already been removed to the Cedar Grove hospital. The Health Officer has encountered much opposition to the vaccination orders and the fresh outbreak is due to the refusal of the people in the Antioch neighborhood to be vaccinated.

The negroes at the Concord hospital have nearly all been sent to their homes and the trouble this time is among the white people.

CLOTHES BURNED OFF.

Little Child Narrowly Escapes a Horrible Death.

The little four-year-old child of Mr. Thomas Wilson, who lives on Cleveland avenue, narrowly escaped a horrible death yesterday morning. The child was standing near an open grate, when its clothes caught on fire, and the outer garments were entirely consumed by the flames. Mrs. Wilson, who was attracted by the child's screams, succeeded in smothering the flames. The little one's hair was scorched, but beyond this it was not injured.

lawned in the past the hope. To his right the Little Snake trailed the yearning trend of the serpent.

How he made that fearful dash down the slope into the very midst of the savage host below remains only as some horrible reality—how the very daring of his intentions held the Redskins inert and spellbound for a moment and aided by the realistic momentum of his pony, carried him through the opposing line, with his "Colt's" spitting its death bark into the ring of scolding, painted faces.

It was First Sergt. Burns who leaped his barrier of horseflesh and dragged back the recumbent figure of the fallen trooper, with only a furrowed cheek in payment for his bravery.

"He's touched," said the sergeant, grimly, flinging the blood from his wounded cheek.

"In the shoulder?" questioned a pale-faced lad, late of the east, glancing at the blood-stained uniform.

"Naw," he grinned the sergeant; "it's his heart."

When Arnold came to life again, a half hour later, the fight was nearing its end. His message carried but little hope—the reinforcements could not possibly arrive in time.

Sergt. Burns swept the distant crest with a last look of infinite longing. If only—

"By the eternal God!" A trooper appeared silhouette against the sky-line—another—the stars and stripes—the battalion.

Above the din of the battle came the call of the bugle—God's own melody to the beleaguered men—and the soul of the bugler was in his music.

"Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light, What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming? Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight, O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming. And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air, Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there."

On they swept, a solid phalanx of invincible blue. A little while later Lieut. Col. Marsh, commanding the reinforcements from Fort McLean, tired but triumphant, congratulated Maj. Dunn.

The following day a body of horsemen rode into Fort McLean. Among their number was Bob Arnold, with a bandaged shoulder and his arm in a sling.

The "Belle of Old McLean" met him at the gate. The tears started at sight of his wounds, and then she laughed out of sheer happiness at his return.

"Oh, Bob!" was all she could say, in the fullness of her joy. His whole being seemed tuned to the melody of a thousand songs. Her heart swept his face, light and fragrant as the brush of a rose across his cheek.

He was her lover and hero—Arnold of the ranks—'Farm and Fireside.

CON. BOOTH-TUCKER

SALVATION ARMY LEADER TO RETURN TO ENGLAND.

Has Had Eighteen Years of Successful Work in the United States—Growth of the Army Under His Efforts.

Commander Booth-Tucker, who for the last 19 years has had charge of Salvation Army work in this country, where he is to take up work of an international character. Doubtless the change to different scenes will be an acceptable one, as the sorrow for his wife and co-worker is yet fresh, it being but a comparatively short time ago Mrs. Booth-Tucker, whilst traveling the interests of the army, was killed in a railroad accident.

Booth-Tucker (Frederick St. George de Lantour) was born in India in 1863. In 1881, after holding several government positions, he resigned to join the Salvation Army. From 1882-91 he had charge of the work in India, and from 1891-96 labored in London. In the latter year he came to the United States, and ever since has been Salvation Army commander of this country, his wife, Countess Emma Booth-Tucker, until her sad death having equal authority with her husband in the United States work of the Salvation Army. In the period spent by the Booth-Tuckers in labor here, a marvellous amount of work has been accomplished, and America should remember with gratitude these zealous workers for social betterment. Though sundered from the land of their birth, their work is less appalling in America than Europe, the poor we, too, have always with us, and the Booth-Tuckers here attacked poverty with weapons that proved adequate. They worked effectively in combating the evils of over-crowding, the many problems dealing with the city poor. Commander Booth-Tucker, in a most excellent monograph on the social relief work of the Salvation Army in the United States, gives a report of the work attempted and accomplished in his late field of labor.

He estimates that in prosperous times the United States has at least 3,000,000 paupers, and that this number is alarmingly increased in seasons of business depression. In dealing with the "submerged" in America, the Army worked on the different lines—shelters for homeless men; shelters for homeless women; homes for girls working in stores and offices; homes for children; rescue homes for fallen women; day rooms for slum women; and meetings; slum day nurseries for infants; cheap food depots and cent meals; cheap clothing and second-hand stores; salvage brigades for collection of household and office waste; woodyards; employment bureaus; Knights of Hope for prison visitation and ex-criminals; medical relief, including free hospital and dispensaries; summer outings for the poor; penny ice-wagons; Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners; missing friends and inquiry department; farm colonies for the poor. Or a truth, a comprehensive plan of battle.

The shelters for homeless men number about 50, are located in New York, San Francisco, and the large cities lying between these distant points. Ten cents will buy a man a good warm bed for a night, and the cents given him a room to himself. Hot and cold baths, wash-tubs and reading rooms are free to the lodgers—a contrast to the usual lodging house. There is not such urgent need for similar shelters for women, and but three such have been opened by the army, one in New York, one in San Francisco, and one in Chicago. The homes for artisans not infrequently take in those that found the cheaper shelters a turning-point in their lives towards reform and a higher standard of living, and in several cities exist Salvation Army homes of this class. The Army has homes for orphan and destitute children in New York and San Francisco, and is making one of its farm colonies an agricultural school, where little ones may learn to become self-supporting and home owners.

Booth-Tucker has brought together "the landless man and the landless land," and his farm-colonies are, perhaps, the most prominent feature of his work in America. In Colorado, California, and Ohio have been established colonies that have attracted large numbers from the city and what is the best part of it, have taken them on the land in spite of forebodings that the city's hold was too strong for the one-time dweller there-in to remain content with rural life. Commander Booth-Tucker says of the farm colonies: "There is nothing of a paternal character about them. The colonist is not a mere day laborer without any direct interest in the soil. He is not separated from his family. The links of love are strengthened, instead of being relaxed, and he has placed himself in a position of

NOTE "EUREKA" THREE

One of Thousand Francs Co. of France Undoing of Trio of Paris Franchises.

A thousand franc note proved the undoing of three Frenchmen not long ago. The note belonged to a lady who had the misfortune to lose it while walking along the streets of Paris. It was picked up by a chair member named Renaud, who lived at Montreux; and he placed it very carefully in his pocket and proceeded home. It is not often that a chair member has occasion to change a note for that amount, and Renaud, recognizing the impossibility of turning it into gold without detection, agreed with a friend to do the business for the consideration of 100 francs. Lucien Mathers, also a chair member, was in his turn filled with apprehension. The difficulty was solved by the aid of a horticulturist, named Simonnet, who kindly consented to buy himself a horse for 300 francs and return the change. Renaud thus became richer by 600 francs. All might then have gone well if, two days later, it had not been discovered that the horse had been stolen from a dealer at Meaux. This led to the arrest of the trio, and later in the day the police put their hands on the horse thieves.
